At eight this morning in the port of Kotor has sailed „Seabourn Odyssey”. It’s length is 198 m and width 26 m and sails under the flag of Bahamas. On board are 442 passengers and 327 crew members.

Seabourn Odyssey is the first in a new-class of ships for Seabourn that will accommodate just 450 guests in 225 luxury suites. Although, at 32,000 GRT, Seabourn Odyssey is more than triple the size of Seabourn Pride, Seabourn Spirit and Seabourn Legend, she was the smallest new ship being built by any major cruise line, and her guest capacity is just twice that of the smaller sisters, creating the highest space-per-guest ratio in the industry. Seabourn Odyssey was built by the Italian company T. Mariotti S.p.A., located in Genoa, Italy and named in Venice in June of 2009. Seabourn Odyssey’s 225 ocean-view suites are divided into 13 categories. Ninety percent have private verandas. In addition to more larger suites, Seabourn Odyssey’s additional size is utilized to create more open deck space, and a variety of public rooms and dining venues.
